Mr. Bonner lives in Macon and no one is better known than he. Strangers can rely upon the statement he makes:

In August, 1881, it was discovered that my son's wife was in the last stages of consumption. She was coughing incessantly, and times would discharge quantities of pus from her lungs, could not sleep or retain anything on her stomach, and we thought it only a question of time when life would be compelled to give way to the fatal destroyer. After all other remedies failed, we got

Brewer's Lung Restorer

And began it in very small doses, as she was very weak. She soon began to improve; continued the remedy and was restored to life and health, and is to-day better than she has ever been before. I regard her restoration as nearly a miracle, for which she is indebted to

NOTICE.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ATLANTA:
In order to bring the merits of our medicine
BILIOUSINE,
More fully and quickly to the notice of the people of this city, we have made the STORE 69 PEACHTREE ST.

Where we invite all who are troubled with sick headache, sour stomach, heartburn, biliousness, dizziness, constipation and piles, or liver & kidney trouble, or malaria, to call daily and get THIS MEDICINE A TRIAL FREE OF CHARGE

If there was no virtue in Biliousine, would we give every one a chance to try it free before they buy?

BILIOUSINE

Is a doctor's prescription put in in powder form, it can't be taken dry or mixed with a little water. It is very pleasant to the taste, and contains no iron, alumina, quinine, camphor, and potassium iodide. We will prescribe it to you at all times to call daily, but to call two or three times a day if their complaints require it. For dyspepsia, flatulence, constipation, piles, &c. It is taken dry after each meal. Any other trouble from meals, mixed with a little water. Don't fail to try it. The doctor's prescription is given free of charge, on our advertising store, 69 Peachtree street. For nervous debility and female weakness, Biliousine has no equal.

COMPRTROLLER GENERAL'S OFFICE, ATLANTA, GA. July 9th, 1885.—The Comptroller General reports to me that I have been entirely cured of indigestion by the use of your Dystopic Elixir. I was induced by a friend to try it after failing to find relief elsewhere, and took it for a week without the slightest effect. I took only three small bottles of your medicine before I was entirely well. I suffered several years and although I have had a few relapses, I have not had a return of it. Yours truly, W. A. Wright, Comptroller General, State of Georgia. To say, retail, by Dr. Hightower, Atlanta, Ga.

Montgomery Matters.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 9.—[Special.]—This afternoon a young lad thirteen years old, named Willie McLean, in attempting to jump on a street car of the Coast Line railroad, slipped and fell on his back. The car passed directly over his body, killing him almost instantly. The coroner's jury exonerated the driver and his conduct, as the accident was due to the boy's own carelessness. These emissaries are actively engaged in the investigation of his supposed action.

SALT LAKE, Utah, May 9.—Milton Mussir, convicted of unlawful cohabitation and awaiting his sentence, is dead. Last night his neighbors gave him a sleeping and a death. The following morning was buried in his home.

Wheresoever our most worthy and esteemed brother, A. M. Mussir, by loyalty to the commands of our heavenly Father by his providing the paternal care of his family has brought himself under the curse of God, we do now offer our sympathy and comfort to his wife and children.

PARIS, May 9.—The aggressive foreign policy which has had sway in France for the past year or two, appears to be upon its last legs. Now that an understanding has practically been reached between China and her, preceding from the position so boldly assumed after the unfortunate Langson affair and accepting the Chinese version of the incident, the French people recognize how little glory the French name has acquired and how little advantage they French arms have secured by the treasure and lives wasted in the recent military operations in Tonquin. The more they learn of the conquered regions the more they condemn the whole enterprise, and the more skeptical they become as to any possible advantage of France is so far from her remote and material possessions. The people are more conservative than the newly acquired districts he will receive material assistance from the Russians.

Ezra Duffield's report on the Afghan situation is exercising a potent influence on the action of the government. The rumor current early in the year that the British were about to march into Afghanistan to secure the independence of the Afghans, and to restore the ruler of Kandahar, was considered by many as a mere legend, but the recent publication of the cabinet council this afternoon in directing a cancellation of orders providing for the defense of India against the Afghans, and the turn about taken, and continue to clamor for war.

Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras, and the provinces of India, are in a fever of excitement over the news that the British have withdrawn from the field of war.

CHAPTER I.

"I'd rather be dead than live the life we're living," said Mrs. Sally Towns one day.

"But you'd a right rather I was dead," answered Mr. Tom Towns, her husband.

"I would not. God knows that neither of us is prepared to die. If I was I'd pray to Him to take me this day."

"Why, I thought you was always ready to sail right away to Heaven, and was just waitin' to git rid o' me, and carry out some of your projects."

"Make as much fun as you please, Mr. Towns. You're a man and I'm a woman. You're my husband and I'm your wife. You know you can insult me and abuse me as much as you please, as you've been doing for the last twenty years and better. There's nobody and nothing to hinder you. As for the property, and you know that at least half of it came by me, you're already given Ryal more than his part if you were to die and a division was made betwixt him and me and Ryal. And now you say you're going to town to-morrow and make another will and give to Ryal, not only all the negroes, except Bob and his family, but this very house, where I was born, where I was raised, when I married you, where Ryal was born. Well, sir, the law gives you the power, and you'll take it, as you're always done with what power the law or anything else ever gave you. Do it, sir; I'll never ask you again to change your will, as you know. But even if you could turn your wife at such a time, I can't see, for the life of me, I can't see how a father can forgive his son."

The old man who was full twenty-five years her senior, looked her searchingly.

"Don't you think that, with Buck Slinker to help you and Ryal, you could manage to get along?"

Sally blushed deeply and instantly answered:

"Mr. Towns, if I'd been a man like you, and had the thoughts you've had or pretended to have about Buck Slinker, I'd have killed Buck Slinker before now, or I'd have killed my wife, or I'd have killed her son that had my name, or I'd have killed myself. I'd have killed someone else."

"I expect you are," she said, looking her searchingly.

"I would, in deed. That's the difference between people. You've hinted and hinted about Buck Slinker ever since I've been married to you, as if I wanted you to do so—that well, God only knows what all you've thought have been and are now. You've had no right to do that."

"But when a man like you wants to outrage the feelings of a woman, especially if she's his wife, he wants no foundation. The safest place of meanness which a man can do in this world is meanness to his wife. The law gives him not only the right, but the duty, to do that."

"I don't suppose he's ever known of your thoughts about him, or if he has he's too much self-respect and respect for me to care anything about them."

"Respect for himself, and you too, hah!"

"Yes, sir; respect for both. You don't seem to understand that we have the respect for our own honor and that of a poor, helpless, abused woman at the same time."

"I do believe she wants me dead," he said bitterly.

"No, sir. You needn't believe, and as to that, you didn't say anything such things. Little else you've said enough to make me certain that I'm no murderer in deed or in heart, and if I could be, that I wouldn't in the case of my own husband and the father of my own only child."

"How do I know that?" and his pale wrinkled face anguished with the pangs of undisguised incertitude.

"Ryal," she asked, her grey blue eyes piercing him to the heart; "know what? Oh, my God! What does this man mean!"

At the moment Ryal Towns entered the room, having just returned from the field.

"There's a man of persons," said his mother, "that we want to talk to. You may as well go in there while what you want to say about his mother and about him."

They were two powerful men. The father, known as Long Tom Towns, was six feet three inches tall, had been before age had bent him black eyed, and once black haired, with high cheek bones, a round nose, and a strong, well-set, giving tons of mighty strength of will and muscle and bone. The son, an inch shorter, was strikingly like him, except that he had his mother's complexion of eyes, hair and flesh. Inspite of his plain manners and country breeding, he had the looks and carriage of two noblemen.

"What is it, mother?" he said, tenderly taking her hand but proceeding no further in his earnestness. "What's the matter with mother, helpless? Threatening her yet again about your will?"

The father looked with some embarrassment upon his son who, scarcely 20 years of age, fixed him with a look of calm, steady, resolute, to remonstrate with him.

"Father, it's this time trouble between you and mother should stop. Why should they ever have started, goodness knows. You've never seemed to know mother, somehow, father."

He put his arm around his mother and drew her towards him. The feelings he could no longer repress now showed themselves in his looks and in his words.

"I haven't the slightest idea that you do know one fact about her, father, and that is that she's the best woman upon the top of the ground. See here, son, I tell you the truth, I know, and I right, you've been all hard with her, and I right her, and sometimes you've appeared to be suspicious. I—I don't—my God—I don't know whether you've been suspicious of her or not, nor what about. But with all the opportunities you've had, you've never found out what she was worth to you, I tell you. You've been all hard with her, and I right her, and sometimes you've appeared to be suspicious. I—I don't—my God—I don't know whether you've been suspicious of her or not, nor what about. SENATOR BROWN'S DIVORCE BILL
CREATES A SENSATION.Other Work of the Convention—A Young Lady Takes Her Jewelry from Her Person and Gives
It to the Causes of Missionary Work—
The Newly Appointed Board.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 9.—[Special.]—The last day of the Southern Baptist convention was principally taken up in discussing home missions. Rev. O. F. Gregory, missionary in New Orleans, presented the claims of the dark district of that modern city so eloquently that the convention subscribed $1,360 on the spot. About $100 more came in during the day. One young lady in the audience took her necklace and locket from her throat and gave it. This so affected the convention that it was redeemed, and $100 was subscribed for this purpose.

The two great mission boards of the convention were apportioned as follows:

For Foreign Mission Board, Richmond, Va.—President, L. M. Curry, Virginia; vice president, Jas. Levering, Maryland; Geo. Tomes, Louisiana; George Whitefield, Mississippi; J. S. Burrows, Texas; W. H. Carroll, West Texas; W. H. Felix, Kentucky; W. L. Kilpatrick, Georgia; C. Manly, South Carolina; J. J. Reeder, Arkansas; N. A. Bailey, Florida; W. F. Atkinson, West Virginia; H. A. Rapson, corresponding secretary; J. C. Williams, treasurer; W. H. G. White, recording secretary; F. C. Cottrell, auditor.

Board of Managers—W. W. Lovelace, president; John D. Stewart, Georgia; Jas. L. H. Rowland, Maryland; W. N. Chardoff, Florida; W. R. L. Smith, Virginia; F. M. Law, Texas; M. D. Esty, Arkansas; S. Landrum, Louisiana; Luther Broadus, South Carolina; Jas. A. McCall, North Carolina; F. Sprague, Mississippi; H. McDaniel, Georgia; J. J. Taylor, Kentucky; Wm. H. Strickland, Tennessee; D. F. Riley, Alabama; W. Harrison Williams, Missouri.

F. L. Tichnor, corresponding secretary; A. D. Aspin, treasurer; H. H. Cabins, recording secretary; Jas. D. Atkinson, Atlanta; Jas. E. Pendleton, V. Golden, Jas. A. Anderson, F. C. Cottrell, V. G. Norcross, J. S. Lawton, H. D. Roberson, Jas. A. McCall, Jas. L. H. Rowland, Pendleton, M. G. Kifer, Joseph E. Brown, George Hillier, William Greenaway, H. D. Drake.

SENATOR BROWN BEFORE THE CONVENTION.

At four o'clock this afternoon Senator Brown ascended the rostrum to speak on his bill in resolutions and caused a big stir by presenting it in effect and almost entirely his famous Mormon speech delivered in the Senate. Many objected to the consideration of the resolution on the ground that the convention was simply an organization to raise and distribute mission funds. But Senator Brown defended his resolutions by saying that precedent was on his side, in that previous conventions had passed resolutions on temperance, on peripherals, etc., one session even passed a resolution sustaining the southern confederacy. This question, he claimed, was most important, as it affected the life and well-being of the church and the purity of the family circle. He showed by relation how the law of Moses permitted divorce, and how the law of Christ abrogated this custom and commanded monogamy. He contended that moral guilt was the same in Georgia as in Utah, when a man had two living wives, although in Georgia divorced from one for grounds other than adultery. Even the fact that the statutes of the state permit such marriage does not make it right. The statute says you may do it, but Christ says you must not do it. He was proud of his stand on this subject in South Carolina, his native state, and sorry that his adopted state of Georgia did not have the same provision.

He then moved a resolution and a motion to take up the bill was lost by a vote of 120 to 126. In a division called for the original resolutions of Senator Brown were put and adopted by the convention by a large majority, as follows:

That in the opinion of this convention the act of fornication committed by a married person is under the New Testament dispensation, cause for the loss of the privilege of the Lord's Supper.

Resolved further, That in the opinion of this convention the loss of the privilege of the Lord's Supper is the same as the loss of salvation.

The bill was lost by a vote of 120 to 126. In a division called for the original resolutions of Senator Brown were put and adopted by the convention by a large majority, as follows:

THE NIGHT SESSION.

At the night session Senator Brown's resolution was referred. Dr. Furman moved to amend, objecting to Senator Brown's intimation that there was any scriptural ground of divorce at all. He said the senator's theology was wrong. Others objected to the status of the convention or the subject in that it was outside of the scope of the body, and because the senator's resolution was adopted without discussion, except by himself. A motion to reconsider the whole matter was favored by Dr. Hatcher, of Virginia, and others, and combated by Dr. Hawthorne, Judge Vason and others, and adopted.

The Brown resolutions were then laid on the table by a vote of 120 to 96.

The resolutions on the place and time of the next convention reported in favor of meeting in the First Baptist church in Montgomery, on Friday before the second Sunday in May, 1886. The report was unanimously adopted.

The Rev. Dr. Hawthorne, of Atlanta, was selected to preach the next convention sermon, and Dr. H. M. Wharton of Baltimore, was chosen to alternate. He is a brother of Dr. M. B. Wharton, pastor of the First church in Montgomery.

George W. Norton, of Kentucky, and Numrod Long, of Kentucky, were then elected treasurer and auditor of the convention.

The money contributed by the convention was $235 for the expenses of native Mexican delegates, $240 for a chapel in China and about $100 for a mission church in New Orleans. $75 was contributed for foreign missions.

At the close of the convention to-night the work of the American Baptist Publication society was commended strongly by resolution.

The ladies had their say-to-night by proxy, however, when they reported to the convention through Dr. Baily, of Florida, that they did not desire representation in the convention, but were willing to continue mission work as heretofore.

This action was agreed on by the ladies at the special meeting to-day. Five thousand copies of the constitution were ordered published.

The Brown resolutions were then laid on the table by a vote of 120 to 96.

The money contributed by the convention was $235 for the expenses of native Mexican delegates, $240 for a chapel in China and about $100 for a mission church in New Orleans. $75 was contributed for foreign missions.

At the close of the convention to-night the work of the American Baptist Publication society was commended strongly by resolution.

The ladies had their say-to-night by proxy, however, when they reported to the convention through Dr. Baily, of Florida, that they did not desire representation in the convention, but were willing to continue mission work as heretofore.

This action was agreed on by the ladies at the special meeting to-day. Five thousand copies of the constitution were ordered published.

The Brown resolutions were then laid on the table by a vote of 120 to 96.

The resolutions on the place and time of the next convention reported in favor of meeting in the First Baptist church in Montgomery, on Friday before the second Sunday in May, 1886. The report was unanimously adopted.

The Rev. Dr. Hawthorne, of Atlanta, was selected to preach the next convention sermon, and Dr. H. M. Wharton of Baltimore, was chosen to alternate. He is a brother of Dr. M. B. Wharton, pastor of the First church in Montgomery.

George W. Norton, of Kentucky, and Numrod Long, of Kentucky, were then elected treasurer and auditor of the convention.

A German's Gossip at the Kimball Tomorrow Night
The Meeting of the San Souci Social Club—A Romantic Marriage on Lookout Mountain—Other Interesting Society News

The german given by the Young Ladies' German club, Friday evening at the Kimball, was an occasion of rare enjoyment. A large party of young ladies and gentlemen were present. The young ladies were all elegantly attired. The dancing commenced about ten o'clock and was kept up until one. A satire on baseball, a new figure, was introduced. The ladies did the batting. This new feature of the geman was pleasing and enjoyable. The german was led by Mr. Cranckshaw.

After the conclusion of the programme, which was rendered in a highly creditable and charming manner, the young ladies and gentlemen who had been temptingly spread for the refreshment of those present. The supper over, the balance of the evening was delightfully spent dancing. The evening algether was pleasantly spent, and all were unanimous in their praise of the efforts of Mrs.
Abbott and her charming daughter to make the enjoyment of all complete.

The meeting of the Hubner club, Friday evening, at the residence of Mr. Charles W. Hubner, was a large and enthusiastic affair. A large number

To-morrow night the Nine O'clock German club will give a delightful gathering at the Kimball, commencing at 9 p.m. The Thais have accepted the invitation extended a few days ago, and advise from the central city state that the members will come in force.

The german will be a delightful affair in every way, and will be attended by the society leaders of the two cities. The music will be excellent, and beautiful favors will be presented to those who attend. Refreshments will be served. The german will be led by Mr. Alexander W. Smith and Dan B. Harris.

The reception committee is to be as follows:

Joseph Thompson, chairman; Joseph T. Orme,
W. H. Wimberly, Thomas B. Paine, Sam Hall,
Frank Holland, Clarence Howells, Charles W.

A gay party of young ladies and gentlemen from Atlanta picnicked at the Ierville last Friday. They were chaperoned by Mrs. Grant Wilkins, Mrs. H.
Cabinets, Mrs. Alex Thewell, Mrs. W. S. Wolford, Mrs. J. D. Peeler, Mrs. W. H. Grady, and the following ladies and gentlemen: Misses Ida Gay, Carlotta, Salie Sanders, Belle Thewell, Lillie Orme, Minnie May, Alline Bostic, Ellis
Weeme, Clara Sanders, Mary Ella Reid, Pink Metcalfe,
Mary McGhee, Mittle Jones, Rose Wylie, Dessa Dougherty, Mabel Bostick, Beria
Wolford, Jim Wylie, Lucy Dougherty, Eula Kerner, and Messrs. H. L. McKee, C. D. Tuller, Emory
Lovejoy, T. J. Peeples, Juie H. Lovejoy, Jr., Ed
Peebles, Harry Post, J. D. McCrary, Willie Black, Bon Wylie, Sanford Gay, Andrew Anderson, Manson Glass, R. E. Riley, Russell Renear, Frank Meadow, Henry Dunwoody, Charlie Winship, D. F. Judah and Blair Bullard.

The day was clear and bright, and the merry party, in their picnic attire, entered upon the day's pleasures and had a royal good time. The day was spent in dancing, rowing, playing and all sorts of games and loitering beneath the shade of the beautiful trees at Ierville.

The basket spread was a feature of the picnic, and was kept in elegant order.

The largest social event in the near future will be the annual meeting of the Hubner club, at the Hotel Kimball, on the 21st of May. The Hubner club is a popular young organization, and the members are anxious to have it a success.

The marriage of Miss Fannie May Witt, at Trinity church last Wednesday evening to Mr. Trousdale of Monroe, Louisiana, was a happy event, and an extended notice appeared in this Constitution of Thursday. The bride has a large circle of friends and was an especial favorite in Atlanta.
She graduated several years ago at the girl's high school and began a literary career which has been quite successful. She has written many poems and short stories of decided merit. She is sparkling in conversation and as pretty as a half blown rose.

Friday evening a small party of young ladies and gentlemen assembled in the pleasant parlor of Dr. Heery's inviting home, on Jackson street.
Dancing, games and social conversation made the hours slip quickly by. After the entertainment the party sought their homes, adding the remembrance of another delightful evening to their already long list.

The Galveston News has this item: Dr. E. L.
Connelly of Atlanta, Georgia, wife, who is a native of Ireland, died yesterday morning. Dr.
Connelly arrived here yesterday and are guests of Rev. Dr.
A. T. Spalding, 136 Avenue L. Dr. Connelly avails himself of the opportunities of the medical convention at New Orleans to make a tour through Texas.

The FANCIES OF FASHION.

Bangs will remain in fashion during the summer.

A silver pepper pot in shape of a watering pot is the latest.

An amber color is the most decorative tint of Bohemian glassware.

White eggshell china is again seen on elegant breakfast tables.

The pale yellow wrap in the street is the fashion of the season.

Dark finger glazed Victorian glass in different shades of blue and green are fashion.

Short hair is in fashion in England, and is gradually coming into favor in this country.

Breakfast jackets are made of sateen covered with Angora, not and edged with a frill of Angora lace.

The pretty beige and almond-tinted dresses are revised and find as much favor as they did twenty years ago.

Heavily jeweled shoulder capes will give richness without additional warmth to a summer costume, and probably will be very popular.

White India silk with Turkish embroidery applied and outlined with gold thread.

Short skirts are in fashion in England, and are the ornamental trifles. Valentine's and Modica are the most used for this purpose.

BILL ARP AT HOME.
RELATING HIS ADVENTURES IN THE WEST.

He thinks Texas a great state—He replies to Letters condemning him for his views—May day at an Academy—How he was welcomed home by his family.

The transcontinental railroad is the northern line that runs from east to west through northern Texas. It traverses a beautiful country, reaching from Texarkana to Sherman and is backed by the Red river valley all the way. The timber region eastward sustains some pleasant villages, but where the prairie begins the change is easily seen, for it is the land that makes the larger cities. Clarksville and Blossom Prairie, and Paris and Honey Grove, and Bonham, and Sherman feed and thrive upon the rich products of prairie land. There is a world of cotton made here, and as I stood upon a gentle elevation near Blossom Prairie Captain Moore assured me that ten thousand bales were in sight in the cotton season and two hundred thousand bales of corn. "I am told," said I, "that half of all the cotton in the world is raised here." That was splendid.

BILL ARP.

Brave Whisky for British Soldiers.

The correspondent of one of the London papers, now at Sukkin, writes: When Lord Wolseley first assumed command, the question of liquor for his troops was a difficult one. The Scotch and Irish whisky sent to the commissary department was too heavy, and yet it was necessary to give the men a stimulant. An enthusiastic American at Cairo suggested the use of DUFFY'S Puras Mal whisky, headquarters Baltimore, U.S.A., retailed by all reliable grocers. Dr. Duffus from the adjacent country send in their children, some of them coming several miles. Professor Hobbs has over two hundred pupils in his charge and is regarded a first-class educator. It was Mayday when I was there and everybody seemed happy as they gathered in the groves and fields together. The music and song just like I ever heard at home. Bonham is the county seat and is still older and more solid. Major Grace live there and is kin to most everybody in Columbus and LaGrange, and Athens, and all about. He is a walking ethnological and archaeological instructor, and is about the best teacher of old people and the way that can either remember or forget. Mr. Peeler, formerly of Dalton, captured me there and I was a willing prisoner in his household. He had the good luck to capture a Texas girl who says that some right good men come from Georgia to Texas.

I closed my adventures in Texas and Texarkana, the gate as they called it—a lumber city and railroad center where Dr. Wooten lives—Dr. Wooten, of Wilkes, the usher, the praiser, the defender of Texarkana. If he was not a widower he would be a real gentleman. He is a good man, and I have heard of his lovely women. He escorted me everywhere and could outwalk me in trapping around. Took me to the stock pens where cattle are shipped and where I saw three hundred and twenty calves in one lot—all calves from six weeks to two months old—all bound together, and the pens and yards were solid as stone. The good doctor then walked out to Beeler's park, where he pointed out vicious posts with high-strung names, such as "Cerro and Baden Baden and Kellar."

I expect it was all very sylvan and romantic, but somehow I could tell exactly what I was in the park when I got out and the knight of the grill. He introduced me to my audience in graceful words and manner, and after pleasant compliments to me then stretched forth his hand towards the audience and said: "And there major sets before you, one of the most intelligent and refined assemblies that I have ever had the pleasure of addressing. That was the first. From thence I had a kind fare well to Texas and took the train for Little Rock and Memphis. At the former place I fell in with the Arkansas Press excursion bound for Helena. Of course I had a good time with them; for there are no more genial and pleasant gentlemen than this broad band than the knights of the grill. These gentlemen urged me to join their band and go to Helena, but there were some female names at home sweeter and dearer than Helena to me, and so I was constrained to decline. They asked as gushingly about Arkansas as their mother asked about Texas. They wanted to know if my body is in their state, and that is right. It is a good quality in human nature to be content with their lot and look upon the brightest side of everything. A wise Providence has not put all the good things in one place nor allotted them to the people. When I looked abroad over the beautiful and fertile plains of Texas, and the rolling prairies, I was filled with admiration and while my thoughts with earnest truth. But when I recalled the hills and groves and happy flowing streams of our good old state I felt a yearning to go home. There is no lamp like Aladdin's to transport the longing spirits of us from the hillsides just out of doors."

But still the truth should not give offence even to the most enthusiastic lover of our state. The truth cannot be kept hidden under a bushel. There are people in Georgia who ought to go to Texas. There are people who have been here for years and are now still who have been struggling for years and are struggling still. Texas offers rich land at two dollars an acre with thirty years time to pay it in. Her school lands are upon the market and she wants nothing but the interest annually. The lands are not yet reached for taxation but they soon will. Every year brings them nearer and nearer to the tax collector. As much in ten years as those in middle Texas are now, for they are just as good and the region just as healthy. If I have any hobby at all it is that every family may have a home a home of their own—not rented but owned. There are hundreds in Georgia who will never leave the state, and there are many who have a home where the good wife and daughters can plant their flowers and vines and fruit trees and adorn the garden walks and fix up many little pleasures and look up and be happy. I see in your Tuesday paper that one man came back disgusted after a sojourn of seven months. This was right, but he should have been long enough to make one crop. I guess he is not a farmer and is able to have a home anywhere he pleases, and old Newton is a good county for a gentleman to live in. He intimates my judgment from court houses down to cigars. He intimates that I have been writing to secure large audiences, etc. Well, I need a large audience, but I am not a public speaker. I am not taken in Texas. Now there is a Georgia settlement in eastern Texas, and if the Texas papers copied my letters I never saw them. I had a paragraph which amused me, for it said: "Our Uncle William was lecturing to brilliant houses in Texas, and the houses were very well lighted indeed. No, the Covington friends are not mistaken. I have not been paid to satisfy nor have I been induced by any land agency to write up Texas. Texas has no immigration bureau and needs none. As Daniel Webster said to Massachusetts: 'There she is, look at her, she speaks for herself.' I have seen many sorts of tall, high, honest friends here who came from Georgia and are content and doing well. It is a common idea that they would come back if they could, but that is a mistake. They are all able to come back if they want to. My Covington friend is the only emigrant I have heard of who returned. I have no inclination to discuss Texas with him. It was my pleasure while there to get my impressions. It is no concern of mine."
